DETAILED ACTION

Remarks

1. The amendment to the claims changed the scope sufficiently that examination of all of the claims would constitute an undue burden on the examiner, at least since it would appear multiple references/separate rejections would be needed in rejecting the various species presented below, due to the divergent subject matter of the various species.

Election/Restrictions

2. This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species:

3. Group A:

4. Species A1: electrically conductive material being an inherently rigid material, deemed to read on claim 18

5. Species A2: electrically conductive material being a flexible material, deemed to read on claims 19 and 20

6. Group B:

7. Species B1: material being connected in form-fitting manner, deemed to read on claim 21

8. Species B2: material being connected in force-fitting manner, deemed to read on claim 22

9. Group C:

10. Species C1: electrically conductive material is a sheet metal strip, Fig. 8a, deemed to read on claims 26 and 27
11. Species C2: electrically conductive material is a single ply or multiple ply strip material wound around the lacquered wires, Fig. 8b, deemed to read on claim 28
12. Species C3: electrically conductive material comprising an open receptacle having a U-, circular, or trapezoid-shaped cross-section, Figs. 8c-8e, deemed to read on claims 29 and 30
13. The species are independent or distinct because claims to the different species recite the mutually exclusive characteristics of such species. In addition, these species are not obvious variants of each other based on the current record.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species from each of groups A, B, and C, for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, claim 15 is deemed generic to each of groups A, B, and C. The remaining claims will be examined together with claim 15.

There is an examination and search burden for these patentably distinct species due to their mutually exclusive characteristics. The species require a different field of search (e.g., searching different classes/subclasses or electronic resources, or employing different search queries); and/or the prior art applicable to one species would not likely be applicable to another species; and/or the species are likely to raise different non-prior art issues under 35 U.S.C. 101 and/or 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

The election of the species may be made with or without traverse. To preserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the election of species requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse. Traversal must be presented at the time of election in order to be considered timely. Failure to timely traverse the requirement will result in the loss of right to petition under 37 CFR 1.144. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which of these claims are readable on the elected species.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the species unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other species.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which depend from or otherwise require all the limitations of an allowable generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141.

Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to LIVIUS R. CAZAN whose telephone number is (571)272-8032. The examiner can normally be reached on M-T 6:30AM-5:00PM.
